WAGON DELIVERIES ON 40 MILES OF ADJACENT COUNTRY ROADS.

ESTABLISHED 1846. NEWPORT, R. I., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1898. PRICE TWO CENTS.

WHY

ACME HYGIENIC COUCHES ARE BEST.

Because the entire spring structure is made of spring steel. The double coiled black steel springs are interwoven at their top and bottom ends into a top and bottom section of steel woven wire. This steel woven wire holds the steel springs in place, insuring permanency and durability. These sections have each a spring steel border rod passing through the outer coils of each woven wire section and entirely around it, thus framing it.

These couches are stuffed with moss and covered with figured corduroy—with fringe to match and tufted, from $12.50.

IN A GRAND MARCH.

Insurgents Evacuate the Suburbs of Manila.

Three Thousand Men, With Colors Waving and Bands Playing.

MANILA, Sept. 14.—The insurgents evacuated the suburbs of Manila today. They did so in a grand march, in which nearly 3,000 men took part, carrying rifles, colors waving, bands playing, and shouting "Viva Americanos," "Viva Filipinos Libres."

The merchants here expect heavy losses if a new tariff is enforced at an early date, because their present stocks, valued roughly at $5,000,000, have paid the highest duties.

BACK TO AUSTRIA.

Body of the Assassinated Empress Leaves Switzerland.

GENEVA, Sept. 14.—The casket containing the body of the late Empress of Austria, borne on a four-horse car and followed by two cars almost buried in floral offerings, was conveyed to the railroad station here at 8:30 this morning. An enormous concourse of people witnessed the procession, which was led by the representatives of the imperial court, followed by the Federal Council, headed by the president, and the Genovese council. The firemen lined the streets. The funeral train left here at 9 o'clock.

The funeral car was ornamented with silver wreaths, was surmounted by a silver cross, and had white plumes at each corner. The casket was of polished oak, with silver mountings. It was almost hidden beneath floral tributes.

On the arrival of the hearse at the railroad station, which was hung with black drapery, the coffin was removed, the remains of the empress were ceremoniously blessed and the casket was placed in the railroad carriage, which was then hermetically sealed. After this the Austrian officials embarked on the train and it departed from this city.

Dead Empress to be Buried Beside Her Son.

VIENNA, Sept. 14.—In accordance with the emperor's wishes the remains of his wife, the late Empress Elizabeth, will be interred beside those of the Crown Prince Rudolph. The interment of Saturday, therefore, will be only temporary.

Dingley's Plurality.

LEWISTON, Me., Sept. 14.—Nearly full returns of the votes cast for Representative to Congress from the Second district give Hon. Nelson Dingley, Republican, 7,051 plurality.

SEEKING AN ALLIANCE.

Indications of Reconciliation Between China and Japan.

PEKIN, Sept. 12. (Delayed in transmission)—The Marquis Ito, recently premier of Japan, arrived at Tien-Tsin yesterday and is expected here shortly. The visit of the great Japanese statesman is regarded as likely to result in an offensive and defensive alliance. The marquis, it is asserted, is charged to examine into the possibility of China recovering her lost ground and becoming a useful ally. There is no doubt there has been a strong bias lately, among the leading Chinamen, towards Japan, whose reforms the Emperor of China has been attentively studying.

An imperial edict just issued orders Lu, the director of the Northern railroad, to commence a branch line to the Western hills. Russia recently attempted to obtain a contract to build this road.

ACTUALLY STARVING.

Scenes of Distress Along the Ashcroft Route to the Klondike.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 14.—A party of miners have arrived here from Fort Wrangel, Alaska, and relate a story confirmatory of previous reports of suffering of prospectors who tried to get into the Klondike by the Ashcroft route. The party is composed of James and Frank Hazara, W. Rough and William Mullins. The party is at Dolphin Lake, Manitoba. In an interview Mullins says:

"The scenes of distress along the trail are vividly impressed on our minds. We passed fully one hundred outfits, representing perhaps sixty men, and many of them were actually starving. The poor fellows had in many cases lost everything—clothing, horses and provisions—and were struggling along in a half-starved condition, eating gophers, ground hogs, squirrels, in fact anything they could get. They are a ragged, hungry and desperate crowd of men, with small hopes of reaching their destination. Occasionally a fortunate party on the trail gives them provisions, but none of us had much to spare. All along the trail you can see them linger under trees and under improvised shelters, trudging helplessly along in the day-time and often lying down at night without a bite to eat. It is simply terrible."

Anti-Italian Demonstrations Renewed at Trieste.

TRIESTE, Sept. 14.—The anti-Italian demonstrations here were renewed yesterday evening. An attack upon the Italian club was feared and a detachment of 200 policemen were sent to guard the building. The police and soldiers arrested 120 rioters. Many of the latter had arms in their possession.

Congressman Sulloway of New Hampshire Named for a Third Term.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 14.—Hon. Cyrus A. Sulloway was this noon nominated for Congress by acclamation by the Republicans of the First district. If elected this will be Mr. Sulloway's third term.

PORTER'S PLEA.

Defines Political Situation in Connecticut.

Contest Not One of Candidates But of Principles.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 14.—At 8 o'clock this evening, in the Hyperion Theatre, the first real gun of the political campaign of Connecticut for 1898 will be fired, when the Connecticut Republican state convention will open. The session tonight will partake more of preliminaries than anything else, and the deliberations will be confined to the presentation of credentials and the completion of organization in the form of the appointment of various committees, the assignments of county caucuses, the choice of a permanent chairman, and the address of Congressman Nehemiah D. Sperry of New Haven, in his capacity as temporary chairman of the convention.

The convention, granting the complete representation of all the towns in the state, will be composed of delegates to the number of 504. The real work will come tomorrow, and indications are not lacking that the 1898 convention will long before adjournment develop into one of the most interesting and warmly contested assemblages in the history of Connecticut Republican politics. The caldron has been boiling for some weeks now and extraordinarily sharp lines are drawn. Avowedly there are three candidates in the field for the nomination for governor. By the side of the contest for this nomination, the question as to candidates for the minor positions on the state ticket pales into insignificance, and so far today almost no interest is manifested in the race for the less important offices.

The three candidates for gubernatorial honors are to be found in the persons of State Senator George E. Lounsbury of Ridgefield, John Addison Porter, secretary to President McKinley, and Lieutenant Governor James D. Dewell of New Haven. The most earnest contest is confined to the factions which seek the nominations of Secretary Porter and Senator Lounsbury. The lines along which the principal battle is being fought were long ago drawn, and they have been gathering in tension daily for two months. Mr. Porter evinces no hesitancy in announcing his platform and frankly asserts himself a candidate against what he chooses to characterize as "party bossism." In a nutshell, Mr. Porter's candidacy is avowedly one whose purpose is antagonistic to the Republican state organization.

Mr. John Addison Porter today gave out the following statement, touching the political situation in Connecticut:

"The convention which meets at New Haven this evening will be one of the most important held in many years by the Republicans of Connecticut. The contest is one not merely of candidates but of principles and the issues have been so sharply drawn that they cannot be avoided.

"Leading one side is a powerful, well organized, confident and boastful coterie of politicians. On the other are delegates representing a majority of the Republican voters of the state, as proved by the result of the recent caucuses. The political uprisings which occurred a few days ago in New Haven, Hartford, Middletown, New London, Waterbury, New Britain, Putnam and many other places furnish unmistakable evidence of the wishes of the people, and are so construed by the public.

"The fight is one between the friends of clean politics and the adherents of bossism of the type which seeks candidates available for its own purposes and guarantees nominations months before the delegates to conventions are chosen. It promises every office prior to election and resorts to snap caucuses when representative citizens are away. It strives by other means, including the free expenditure of money, to smother a true expression of popular preference, and is bold enough to defy custom and the opinion of the community, if need be at the risk of party defeat.

"When, as is a well known fact, some at the men who assume this unwarrantable authority band themselves together to control legislation at every session of the general assembly, the scandal becomes a serious menace to the public as well as a detriment to party interests. But the Republicans of Connecticut, through their representatives, have it in their power to get rid of these abuses at this convention. If, after the many warnings they have had, they deliberately refuse to do so, the party will surely be held to strict account by the people.

"There could be no clearer test of good citizenship than this. The first duty of patriotic Americans is to see that their legislation is kept pure and the people left free to choose their own officers. This is sound Republican doctrine, and it is the only safe policy for any political party to adopt.

"Local ties, the exchange of county courtesies, assurances obtained under different conditions, as the result of personal solicitation on the part of the candidates, and all other minor considerations should always be subordinated to the good of the state."

ARRIVING HOME.

A Dozen Soldiers from Camp Wikoff Reach Boston.

BOSTON, Sept. 14.—Nine men of the Ninth Massachusetts, one of the Second, and one of the Twelfth United States infantry, who came from Camp Wikoff to New London on the Shinnecock, arrived at the Park Square station this morning on the 6:55 train. All but Corporal Jordan were taken to the Carney hospital. With them came one of the men of the Seventh United States infantry, who had started with a number of others who came through last night, but stayed over in Providence. He was found in a state of weakness, near the depot, by a newspaper man this morning, and was taken on board with the others.

The men of the Ninth regiment who were on the train were: Corporal John Haggerty, Company B; Privates T. J. Burns, Company G; Thomas McDonald, Company F; Fred Draper, Company D; Eugene C. Daly, Company A; Peter J. Shea, Company M; Robert Lynch, Company B; Dennis J. Swanson, Company D; William F. Dillon, Company I.

Privates Lynch, Swanson and Dillon have been at the Memorial hospital in New London for some time. They were among the men who were sent to New London from the camp hospital at Montauk Point, as able to take care of themselves until they reach their homes. When they arrived in New London they were in such poor condition that they had to be taken to the hospital at once. There they received the best of care, but were anxious to get home, and with the consent of the hospital authorities they were taken on the sleeper which the Massachusetts Volunteer Aid Association had sent for the men coming from Montauk Point.

Private John P. Flanagan, Company I, Seventh United States infantry; Sergeant William O'Brien, Company M, Second Massachusetts, and Corporal John W. Jordan, Company K, Twelfth United States infantry, were also on the train.

This Morning's News

LIKELY TO YIELD.

Aguinaldo's Own Following Falling Away from Him.

MANILA, Sept. 13.—Two more days remain until the date set by General Otis in his ultimatum to Aguinaldo ordering the withdrawal of the insurgent troops from the suburbs of Manila. Whether the "dictator" will yield is problematical, but he probably will. With his own following breaking away, Aguinaldo can hardly afford to break with the Americans.

It is questionable whether General Pilar, commanding the troops quartered in Malate, will obey the order to withdraw. If the order is disobeyed, a crisis will have arrived.

The archbishop of Manila denies emphatically any knowledge of the existence of a plot on the part of the Spanish Clerical party to ruin Aguinaldo's cause before the Paris commission by stirring up rival insurgent leaders to commit some overt act which will precipitate a conflict with the Americans.

"Every Spanish priest who has the good of the church at heart," the archbishop said to me, "hopes only to see America secure in peaceable possession. In such possession lies the only possible future for the church here. Why should priests seek to promote discord and embarrass the nation from which alone they can hope for future protection? Not having seen Americans, we appreciate the generous spirit in which they conquer. No Spanish Clerical plot exists. I give you my most solemn assurance of this."

HONG KONG, Sept. 13.—A special despatch received here from Manila, from a Spanish source, says:

"Aguinaldo has liberated all the Spanish prisoners. The Americans, in violation of the terms of the capitulation, have seized the public offices, destroyed the archives, disregarded the municipal laws, and are collecting the overdue Spanish taxes."

PROTOCOL PASSED.

Terms of Peace Accepted by Lower House of the Cortes.

MADRID, Sept. 13.—The Hispano-American protocol was passed by the lower house of the Cortes today, and when the debate, which may last two or three days, is concluded, it is said that Sagasta will forthwith place before the queen regent the question of confidence, and if the queen supports him—and it is certain that she will—he will then nominate the Paris commission, with Montero Rios as the corner-stone.

One of the points which the commission will be especially charged to insist upon is that Spain, having ceded Cuba and Porto Rico, shall in no kind or way be held responsible for claims or damages of any kind after peace is concluded.

The Republicans, Carlists and bolting Conservatives of the Chamber of Deputies have issued a manifesto giving their reasons for opposing the government. Its publication has been prohibited.

Senor Sagasta, in an interview today, said no claims advanced by the United States after the peace protocol was signed or the Cortes bureaus met to elect peace commissioners would be entertained.

Advices received from the Philippine islands say the insurgents will release only a few of their prisoners. They will shortly set free the Spanish civil employes who are in their hands.

Major General Merritt, it is said here, goes to Paris empowered to ask, in the name of the insurgents, an American protectorate over the whole of the Philippine islands.

ROOSEVELT'S GOOD-BYE.

His Affecting Farewell to His Gallant Rough Riders.

CAMP WIKOFF, Montauk Point, L. I., Sept. 13.—Colonel Roosevelt said good-by to his Rough Riders with tears in his eyes and a smile on his lips today. His men showed their love for him by presenting to him a splendid bronze statue of a broncho buster—a monument, the men of the western plains called it, although it was only about a foot and a half high—and then the 550 of his troopers who were here marched by their chief in single file and gave him hand grips that were firm and fierce for admiration.

The man from Arizona at the head of the line said when he started out that it was to be "no pump-handle function," and it wasn't.

Four troops of the Rough Riders were mustered out today and received two months' pay. It was the colonel's last chance to meet in one body the curious, fearless fellows who had gathered around him from every state in the Union and from every walk of life, but the circumstances that brought the farewell about today were in the nature of a surprise to him.

More of a surprise for him to hear a free silver Democrat of the most fervid type, from New Mexico, shout, when the presentation formalities were ended, "Three cheers, boys, for the next governor of New York."

With a will the cheers were given. Cowboy yells became mixed up in a babel, in which one could distinguish now and then a coyote hoot and a common American hurrah, the rattle of a college volley of voices, and the hoarse guttural notes of Indians.

Colonel Roosevelt blushed, bowed, tried to talk and couldn't; retired, advanced again, and stumbled through a few words which made his men understand that he wanted to grasp their hands. Pandemonium broke loose again, but when the first battle-stained trooper walked up to say the good-by words, and, with head uncovered, almost whispered them, there came a stillness and there were no more demonstrations until the parting was over.

When the men had gone back to their places troops B, H, M and K were paid off and discharged from the service of the United States. Other troops will be mustered out tomorrow, and by the next day the Rough Riders will exist only in history.

INCREASING HER ARMY.

Chili Preparing for a Possible Conflict with Argentina.

VALPARAISO, Chili, Sept. 13.—Chili is increasing her army to more than 100,000 men. This course has been determined upon as a response to the continued opposition of Argentina to the proposal of general arbitration to settle the boundary dispute.

On high authority it is stated that Bolivia has entered into a secret alliance with Argentina against Chili. The reason for this is said to be Bolivia's expectation that the protocol with Peru will be passed by the Chilian congress. This would take away all hope of a port on the Pacific for her, and her trade interests would naturally incline her to support Argentina. The chambers have been permanently assembled here for the purpose of approving the protocol with Peru. The situation, therefore, in view of the continued disagreement of the boundary commissions, is most desirous.

BUENOS AYRES, Argentina, Sept. 13, 1898.—The government and people of Argentina believe there is to be no war with Chili over the boundary dispute, but the preparations for any emergency continue actively. The authorities are showing the utmost activity in the organization and equipment of the army and navy. The government declares it will not create difficulties with Chili, or provoke a war, but it is preparing to meet any situation. It will insist on the enforcement of all existing treaties bearing on the boundary question. The people are spontaneously offering funds to uphold the government. The business world, however, shows confidence in the preservation of peace, there being no alarm on the exchanges.

According to the Prensa, the differences between the Chilian and Argentine experts appointed to settle the boundary dispute involve 81,000 square kilometers of land.

JAPAN'S NEW TREATIES.

Will Go Into Operation at the Beginning of Next Year.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The Japanese legation has received notification that September 10 the government of Japan proclaimed that the new Japanese statutory tariff, as well as the English, German, French and Austro-Hungarian conventional tariffs, would be put into operation January 1, 1899. This step marks the inauguration of Japan's new treaty relations with the western powers.

The revised treaties as a whole will go into operation July 19, 1899, but by their terms it was provided that, if the Japanese government so desired, a new tariff might be substituted before that date for the conventional tariff which has been in exclusive operation since 1866.

Under the new arrangement, Japan will enjoy practically complete liberty of action, since the new conventional tariffs are of limited scope and terminable at the end of a fixed period. The average rate of duty in the four new conventional tariffs is a little less than ten per cent ad valorem. The statutory tariff will show a slightly higher average. The present conventional tariff, which has existed practically unchanged since 1866, fixed a maximum of five per cent ad valorem.

STILL ANOTHER SENSATION.

Startling Developments Anticipated in the Dreyfus Case.

PARIS, Sept. 13.—Among the rumors in circulation tonight regarding the Dreyfus case is one that an arrest still more sensational than any yet made is imminent. Another report says that when General Zurlinden, minister for war, resigns, legal action for revision will be commenced before his successor is appointed.

General Zurlinden at the last moment begged to be excused from accompanying President Faure to the manoeuvres.

The frank newspaper assertion that M. Faure is supporting General Zurlinden in opposing revision has created considerable comment, and given rise to the notion that there will be no revision while M. Faure is President.

Tonight four men, armed with clubs, attacked and severely injured M. Philibert Roget, director of a Dreyfusite paper. One of the four is under arrest.

PAYING FOR PAST ERRORS.

Lives of Our Soldiers a Sacrifice to the Spoils System.

As I write an organ is pealing through a crowded church; a city is honoring a dead soldier, grandson and great-grandson of patriots; soldiers are walking with bowed heads beside a comrade's flag-draped bier as it passes to the sound of military music through the Newport streets. The thoughtless, pleasure-loving city, hushed in dismay, is mourning another valiant son.

This scene is, alas, but one of the thousand that are passing in our land. The radiant August sun which lights Lieutenant Tiffany's coffin, borne by its guard of honor to the tomb, is shining today on a hundred humble churchyards where grief-stricken families stand beside new-made graves.

Other parents may assuage grief with the thought that their son fell in action with his face to the enemy and his sword in his hand. To know that the boy one kissed and sent away to fight for an oppressed people gave his life to some purpose, that his death contributed to a victory, must be a comfort even in the bitterest grief. But the knowledge that the life on which yours hung has been sacrificed, thrown away, wasted, by the imbecile blundering of public servants, men who from incapacity (let us hope, rather than from dishonesty) have procrastinated, trifled and delayed while our returning army was in such peril, must add additional anguish to the most poignant grief.

A cry of horror is going up from every township of this country as our people learn more each day about the tortures inflicted on valiant men in pestilential camps and filthy, ill-provided transports—fever-stricken, helpless soldiers left uncared for, without beds, without medicines, without food, offered water that swine would refuse, within three hours of the richest city on the continent. As the awful word "starvation" appears each day in the reports of deaths among youths who rushed to arms, without one thought of self, in the hour of the country's need, the nation in its wrath clamors for the names of the offenders, that they may be held up to infamy, foolishly imagining that a few men in high places are alone responsible for all this unnecessary misery. As the months pass by a "scape-goat" will probably be chosen and laden with a country's sins, for in our humiliation we find it a satisfaction to think that "if certain places had been better filled all this would not have happened!" Error! It is our own faults that we are expiating; sins of omission and criminal carelessness.

The war has taught many splendid lessons, has proved to us and to incredulous Europe that we are a great united nation, not a conglomeration of discordant elements; that the old Anglo-Saxon blood in our veins can produce as brave men and as able commanders today as in the past; that the great "commercial nation" can forget its money-making and fight as our fathers fought against oppression. But in the hour of our victory, with the eyes of Europe upon us, we are being cruelly humiliated. With the éclat of our arms echoing through the earth, we the pioneers of civilization, we the richest and most advanced nation in existence, are forced to admit that organizations like our commissary department would have been a disgrace to Napoleon in Syria, or to mediaeval Spain.

Let us at last be quick in learning the great lesson all this confusion and suffering teaches, and realize at last that there can be no effective working of any department where the places are re-distributed every four years, in payment of campaign debts to untrained office seekers.

This truth is written on every emaciated face, on every shattered form, among the decimated troops creeping back to die of want or neglect. When we learn that regiments like the Eighth regulars, that have not left our shores, suffered more loss from fever and insufficient food than the Seventy-first, which was through the entire campaign and in the thick of every fight, we ask in dismay: Was ever such blundering committed by any civilized nation before? Considering the wealth and facilities of communication at the command of our officials, the answer comes swift and terrible: Never, since Napoleon poisoned his sick and wounded at Joppa, has such a crime against poor helpless humanity been perpetrated!

Surely "our sins have found us out!" We are paying for past errors as surely as did the captive tribes in Egypt, with the lives of our first-born.

For the honor of the American name I am loath to believe that there are men in power vile enough to traffic in the food and medicines of our troops, so the only remaining explanation is that gross blundering and criminal incapacity are to blame for the failure to provide them with proper food, shelter and sanitary arrangements. It is because we in our folly imagined that such a service could be improvised, when needed, from the material our defective civil service placed at our command, and have allowed important positions to be bartered away in return for "personal influence" and "local services" to the "party." We have permitted men we would not receive into our houses, so doubtful is their integrity, to rule our cities and direct our departments. The lesson is easy to read.

Why has our army and navy covered itself with glory? Because every man therein has been learning his duty during long years of study and practice! Does any one imagine that Dewey would have been competent to lead on our ships to their brilliant victory if he had been foisted into command as a return for a check to a "campaign fund" or for helping a President to pay his debts?

Would any one but a fool give a valuable horse to the care of a servant who had never been in a stable or confide a child's education to any but a trained teacher? And yet (matters infinitely more vital) we have committed the feeding and transportation of our troops to hands so grossly incompetent that we would be the laughing stock of Europe if horror had not quelled their mirth.

Do not lay this paper down with a shrug. The truth—the hideous, naked truth—is before us, and must be faced.

It is by the fault of our dishonest "spoils system" and because our politicians have made "civil service reform" a vain word that in the hour of its need the country now finds itself without an army of trained officials that one degree less important than the troops in the field), and which every other first-class nation has at its command, men who have entered the service of their country, as others enter the army and navy, with the intention of passing their lives in one employment, industrious bees in the vast hive. No. In our folly we have made it impossible for the government to have such servitors in our civil departments, our "system" has closed the doors to such servants. No man worth his salt will take a place from which he is sure of being ejected within four years to make place for some greedy hanger-on who has a "pull."

To our wealthy classes, especially, should the truth be brought home. It is at their door that the greatest blame lies. In their lust for gold they have discouraged their sons taking positions in the public administration; because, forsooth, the pay is small! And they have pushed them toward business and speculation that they might amass more wealth, until positions that Englishmen of education and birth willingly accept are scorned by our prosperous classes. If the best brains and intelligence of our country hold aloof from politics it is but a natural sequence that less worthy hands will catch at the helm; then when the storm comes the ship will go on the rocks, and, as at this moment, thousands of priceless lives be sacrificed to incapacity and greed.

The suffering of our neglected soldiers lies on the conscience of every one of us who, by selfish supineness and love of ease has allowed such a state of things to grow. When it is proved in a way that cannot be misunderstood that camps have been located to propitiate railway magnates who wanted the business for their roads; when we find that contracts have been given to the highest bidders because they, like the "magnates," would be of use in the next campaign, to which, apparently, the best energies of the administration are directed, to the neglect of higher duties, the time has indeed come when every honest man should rise and do what he can to reform our politics and strive to create a pure and effective "civil service" on a level with our honored army and navy; beating out the hideous corruption that has eaten into our House of Representatives and Senate and lowered the moral standard of our state and city governments until back of every improvement is a "job," and every desirable place is given by favoritism to men with no training for the position who leave the broker's office or the factory for a seat in the cabinet.

If every weeping mother in a darkened room would swear over the body of her murdered son, if every broken-hearted father would resolve as he looks on his first-born, dead—not fighting nobly in the sunlight but abandoned to loathsome disease, unfed and uncared for—that this moment should be the turning point of our country's existence, that all energies should be directed to reform, then, and not till then, might the hideous incubus that has sucked the life blood of our youths be swept away so completely that a change of administration would not incur the loss to the country of a single humble functionary. And men in future might grow gray in places they have learned to fill effectively.

Then, and not till then, can we feel that all these lives have not been sacrificed in vain, for we will see our beloved country rise, new-born, from their graves.

Palatable Distilled Water, 30c. for 5 gallons.
PALATABLE DISTILLED WATER.
Distilled by a new process which removes all mineral and organic matter, and also the flat, insipid, bitter taste, caused by gases in some of the other distilled waters. It will keep for any length of time in any climate.
All medical authorities agree that PURE distilled water is the best for the health. The taste has hitherto been the great drawback to its universal use.
This brand is one of the purest now known to the profession, as not only is it perfectly sterilized, but all deleterious gases, by a new process of distillation, are removed from it; and gases are the source of the bad flavor hitherto associated with some distilled water.
This water is put up in 5-gallon Carboys for 30c. delivered, also in ½-gallon bottles. 3 gallons in a case, for 30c., delivered; and we would be pleased to furnish a free sample to consumers who desire to try this water. It is manufactured by the Diamond Ice Co., of Newport, R. I., and sold by

SEASONABLE NOTES.

Anarchy has dealt itself another of those blows calculated to stay its progress for a time. The murder of the Empress of Austria was a particularly vicious act. She was a gracious, gentle and charitable woman. She lacked the patience that has kept other princesses at their posts in corrupt courts, but her measure of intellect was so far beyond that of her royal sisters in general, that the spirit which made court life repulsive to her in her late years can easily be understood. The independence of the empress did not lose her the love of the Austrians.

One who had personal relations with the late Empress of Austria speaks of her as having the same power that Mary Stuart possessed, that of winning the love and devotion of her attendants. If some of her early beauty had faded, the sweetness and pathetic charm of her face was so great that the youthful freshness was not missed; and to those who loved the empress she was still a very beautiful woman. Even in Vienna, the city of fine-looking women, she was noted for her perfection of figure and her grace. One of the latest pictures of the empress was taken by an American who was associated with her Greek professor, and so occasionally was thrown into contact with her. The plate was submitted to the empress, who laughingly gave her permission that prints should be made—as well she might, despite her objection to photographs of herself. The face is almost entirely concealed by a sunshade, but the slender, beautifully poised figure makes a picture that would be attractive aside from the rank of the subject.

To this American, accustomed to meeting scholarly men and women, the intelligence and extent of the attainments of the empress were a constant surprise. It was a matter of remark that if fate had been kinder to her, and she had been saved from a position where she was bound down by rigid etiquette, she might have made as great a name for herself as her brother, Carl Theodore, who ranks high among the famous oculists of the world.

As those who are familiar with the story of the Crimean war know, the English hospital at Constantinople was started with as poor equipments as the camp at Montauk, and at first was in the hands of men as poorly adapted for the work as those who are still in charge of Camp Wikoff. The disadvantage of the English was that they were in a strange land, and one where everything wanted was lacking; but their advantage was the true British habit of recognizing failure and making success out of it. The official heads dropped as fast as incompetence was shown, and the hospital was reformed in a way to shame us. Camp Wikoff has every advantage that the world can offer, and the thirty money spent on it has rolled into an immense sum; but the petty spirit of government economy, and the political pull that keeps wranglings at the head of affairs, are to make it our everlasting disgrace. Not enough of Camp Wikoff, where the men are sleeping on the ground these cold nights and filling themselves for the grave or to become pensioners of the government. Cots cost $1 apiece, and the lack of a few thousand of them now will cost the government eventually some millions of dollars in pension money.

The two to whom the redemption of the Constantinople hospital was largely due, were a woman and a American man. Those who stood in their way, with the answer "We cannot admit any outside interference" to every attempt to aid the sufferers, were dismissed in disgrace, and Florence Nightingale and her nurses took possession of the hospital and transformed it. But it was the work of Rev. Cyrus Hamlin that is the most interesting to us. It is worth everybody's while to take up his book "Among the Turks," and to read how he became a baker and laundryman for the hospital, how he enriched his poor people by paying them generously for their work, and how he had enough honestly earned money left to pay $25,000 toward the building of mission churches in Turkey.

He found the English wounded in a pitiful state. They had had no washing done for five months. The soldiers were suffering for clothes, and there was soiled clothing enough piled in a great hall for a thousand men. The chief physician said it could not be washed, and at any suggestions raised the usual cry of intruder. Quantities of clothes were burned, as they are at Montauk.

"I went," says Dr. Hamlin, "immediately to Scutari, and made known the state of things, the conduct of O'Connor, and the perfect ease with which the want could be supplied, there being thousands of women who would be glad of the work. I asked for no contract and no price. I was determined to do the work and change the aspect of things in Kulelie." He got the chance and set up his wash-house and engaged women, but when the clothes came they were too vile. The women fled. The people living in the neighborhood threatened a riot. It was "a fix," and neither the women nor the people could be blamed.

Then this brainy Christian gentleman thought of a big beer-cask that was lying near the hospital. The miserable doctor stood in his way for some time, but an order from a higher authority finally gave it to him. It was rigged into something like a pounding barrel, and into this the clothes were put with soap and water.

"I took up the articles with tongs, and put them in, let on the water and told the man to work the brake twenty minutes. Five or six minutes were found to be quite enough. The water ran off with a filthy, muddy color. Pure water was let in till after rinsing it came away pure! The women returned and the work went on. The laundry kept ahead of the demand, and at times three thousand articles a day were cleansed and dried and sent back, to the joy and comfort of the soldiers.

"The women in the laundry, working by the piece and aided by the washing machines, earned from $30 to $45 a month, a sum never dreamed of as possible by them; and the comfort it diffused in their poor homes was one of the richest rewards of the work."

The brutal doctor was removed, and in disgrace, the petty spirits were stifled down and the capable rose to the top. Even the "Crimean enemy" was utterly subdued by those clever English aided by the intelligent American, and the hospital at Constantinople can now be remembered with pride—all because British honesty prevailed and no feeling of sentiment or personal regard was allowed to stand in the way of the sifting process.

COAT OF PLAITED MATERIAL.

Flounces of plaiting replace the circular flounce in some new designs. Here is a gown of veiling made with a graded flounce of deep plaits, set on a scalloped top that fits snugly at the front and sides.

The jacket is unique, being made entirely of plaiting, the back and sides belted, the edges in front rounded off and left free to form a jabot effect. This opens over a vest of white silk laid in accordeon plaits. A round collar is edged with plaitings of veiling, which extend over the sleeves, which are of the most popular and becoming cut—the leg-o'-mutton. Naturally, this gown is suitable only for slender forms. The jacket and flounce both describe the proper cut, rounding up in front. The tie is of silk to match the vest.

These cutaway coats will be enormously used this fall in all materials. The Louis coat with rounded fronts and swallow-tail back is in evidence too, but is carried out successfully only in rich materials. Handsome brocades and rich silks will be most generally used for these shirt waists, and it is safe to predict that these coats will largely replace the separate waist for theatre and evening wear.

NEW WAY TO PROPOSE.

As the young man entered, the old man looked up and scowled.

"Well?" said the old man, shortly.

"Your daughter," began the young man, but the old man cut him off abruptly.

"I've noticed that you've been hanging around a good deal," he said. "I suppose you've come to tell me that you love her and want to marry her?"

"No," replied the young man calmly, "I've come to tell you that she loves me and wants to marry me."

"What!" roared the old man.

"She says so herself," persisted the young man.

"I never heard of such an exhibition of egotistical impertinence," said the old man.

"Then you misunderstand me," explained the young man. "My assertion is dictated by policy and not by impertinence. You see, it's just this way. What I want is nothing to you, now, is it?"

"Why—er—not exactly."

"I might want a million dollars, but that wouldn't cut any figure with you, would it?"

"Certainly not."

"Then what a fool proposition it would be for me to come to you and say: 'Mr. Parkinson, I have been favorably impressed with your house and lot,' or 'I think I'd like your daughter,' or anything else in that line. But when your daughter wants anything it's different. Now, isn't it different?"

"It certainly is different," admitted the old man, cautiously.

"Precisely," said the young man. "She and I figured that out carefully last night. You see, I have no particular prospects, and we could both see that there wasn't one chance in a hundred that you would give her to me. Then she suggested that you had never yet refused anything that she wanted, no matter what the cost might be, and that perhaps it would be a good plan to change the usual order somewhat. We sort of felt that it wouldn't be right to ask you to do anything for me, but it's different in her case, as I remarked before. So I'm here merely as her agent to say that she wants me, that she wants me very much, and to ask you to please see that she gets me. She never has wanted anything so much as she wants me, and I am so favorably disposed toward her that if you care to make the investment I shall be quite willing to leave the terms entirely to you and her."

Naturally she got him. No wide-awake business man is going to overlook a chance to get such a fine sample of nerve in the family.—[Chicago Post.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.

The cause of the opponents of capital punishment for the crime of murder is likely to experience something of a setback from the embarrassment now felt in the canton of Geneva, which abolished this form of punishment some years ago. In consequence of this action, the shocking crime of the assassin Luccheio cannot be punished as it deserves to be without a special enactment abrogating the law to meet this specific case. It is easy to arouse a sentiment against taking a life for a life where the crime of murder is not rampant, but when anarchists are plotting the assassination of the rulers of the earth and of those who happen to be near and dear to them, the need of such exemplary punishment as shall strike terror to these brutal assassins becomes at once apparent.—[Boston Herald.

The high price of ivory and the great waste of its dust have induced an English manufacturer to offer $500 for a process of so consolidating the dust that it can be used for making handles. The relief is expressed, however, that, although a fortune doubtless would be realized, no process will be found.

WHEELER AT SANTIAGO.

["General Wheeler started on the two miles' journey to the front in an ambulance. About half-way to the front he met some litters bearing wounded. The veteran, against the protest of the surgeons, immediately ordered his horse, and after personally assisting the wounded into the ambulance, mounted and rode onward. The men burst into frantic cheers, which followed the general all along the line."—[Correspondence New York Tribune.]

Into the thick of the fight he went, pallid and sick and wan,
Borne in an ambulance to the front, a ghostly wisp of a man;
But the fighting soul of a fighting man, approved in the long ago,
Went to the front in that ambulance, and the body of Fighting Joe.

Out from the front they were coming back, smitten of Spanish shells—
Wounded boys from the Vermont hills and the Alabama dells;
"Put them into this ambulance; I'll ride to the front," he said;
And he climbed to the saddle, and rode right on, that little old ex-Confed.

From end to end of the long blue ranks rose up the ringing cheers,
And many a powder-blackened face was furrowed with sudden tears,
As with flashing eyes and gleaming sword, and hair and beard of snow,
Into the hell of shot and shell rode little old Fighting Joe!

Sick with fever and racked with pain, he could not stay away,
For he heard the song of the yester-years in the deep-mouthed cannon's bay—
He heard in the calling song of the guns there was work for him to do,
Where his country's best blood splashed and flowed 'round the old Red, White and Blue.

Fevered body and hero heart! This Union's heart to you
Beats out in love and reverence—and to each dear boy in blue
Who stood or fell 'mid the shot and shell; and cheered in the face of the foe.
As, wan and white, to the heart of the fight rode little old Fighting Joe!

—[James Lindsay Gordon.

THE CARE OF THE FINGER-NAILS.

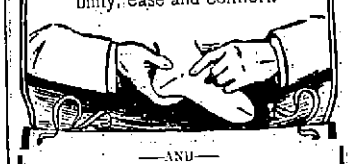

A few minutes given every day, once the nails are properly treated, will keep them firm and exquisite in color. After the hands are washed each morning use the nail-brush thoroughly, and then, when they are quite dry, push back, very gently, the skin that is inclined to grow up around the edges of the nails. Under no circumstances use a steel point to push back this skin, and do not cut it away, as the professional manicures are apt to do. While the nail is still moist use the point of a file to remove any dust or specks that the brush has neglected, and then, with nail-scissors, sharp, curved, and kept for this purpose only, cut the nails in a shape that suits your finger-tips. The ridiculously long nail, which looks like a claw, is entirely out of fashion. Use the file to make smooth the rough edges left by the scissors, and then take the least little bit of red nail paste and smear the tiniest morsel on each of the nails. Don't let it get into the edges or roots, for it is intended only as a sort of oil to keep the nails soft and to prevent their growing horny; then sprinkle a pinch of powder on the polisher, and rub each nail with a quick, even stroke that will result in giving a brightness that is refined-looking, but not a brilliancy that suggests that one shines only at her finger-tips. After this give the hands another bath, using hot water and a delicate soap, then close them and rub one set of nails against the other, achieving in this way a proper finish.—[Ladies' Home Journal.

FREAKS OF THE MAUSER.

"Those Mauser bullets did some mighty queer things," said a wounded soldier the other day. "As long as they were flying through the air they went straight enough but when one struck a man's body there was no telling what it would do. Sometimes it would go straight through him, bones and all, and go zipping on to plug some poor fellow half a mile away perhaps. And then again it might chase around inside him like a hen with her head cut off. I saw a man who was hit in the right eye by a Mauser. The ball, instead of lodging in his brain, went through his temple and down the side of his face in front of his ear, just under his skin. It kept on under his skin, leaving a red track all the way, went down the side of his neck, over his shoulder and down his back. Near his waist it came out. The man's getting well. Another man was shot in the left breast. The ball went through his chest, turned down went through his liver, ploughed its way through the muscles of his right thigh and came out near his right knee. It's mighty queer the way those balls go sometimes. I suppose they hit bones and glance, but that won't account for it always. Another queer thing is that most all the men were hit between the belt and knee. The Spanish fired low."—[New York Commercial Advertiser.

AUXILIARY COMMITTEE

NO 50

Of the American National RED CROSS Relief Committee, has been appointed to collect funds to send Tobacco To our Soldiers and Sailors at the front.

No tobacco is furnished them by the government. It can seldom be bought by them even when they have the money, and they have suffered much from the lack of it. The Red Cross Auxiliary hopes that their great need in this direction will appeal to men at home who understand what such a need implies when it is added to deprivations and sufferings of many other kinds.

Contributions may be sent to the chairman of the Committee,

MRS. SCHUYLER VAN RENSSELAER,

ADVERTISING RATES.

Advertisements, without special position, $1 a square for the first insertion and 25 cents for each continuance. Ten lines, or less, nonpareil type (or five-sixths of an inch) make a square. Advertisements of five lines or less are taken at about one-half these rates. A discount is allowed on all advertisements ordered in the Daily for more than one week, or when both papers are used.

Yearly or Term Advertisers are limited to their immediate business, are guaranteed not five insertions in a week, and are allowed twenty-five changes a year. Electrotypes will be used without extra charge if solid metal; "wood backs" cannot be used with safety to the press.

Advertisers using both the daily and weekly papers gain the advantage of distinct classes of readers, no person reading both the daily and weekly. The Journal goes among people who read no other local paper.

PRINTING.

The News has six steam presses and has a large and well-appointed job printing office.

DR. ANDREWS IN CHICAGO.

Ex-President Andrews, superintendent of the board of education in Chicago, appears to be stirring up the dry bones and putting new life into the representatives of the Windy City. He first startled the conservatism of the big town by recommending the addition of Spanish to the course of study in the public schools, and we believe secured the adoption of that study as one of the electives, which, probably, the whole country will approve. The Times-Herald reports that at a later meeting of the committee Superintendent Andrews "sent a shiver through the board of education" by announcing that he had suspended a principal of one of the grammar schools, on the ground of incompetency. The Times goes on to say that hitherto such matters have been accomplished by the board only after a great many red-tape formalities have been observed, and all persons who have had connection with school management will realize how difficult it is to get rid of an incompetent teacher who may not be absolutely bad in his profession. For a period of twenty-seven years, according to our authority, no other superintendent in Chicago has exercised the prerogative to remove an objectionable teacher, and in this case there was little or no forewarning of what was to be done.

The Times-Herald is of the opinion that Dr. Andrews is to be commended for his straightforward course in going directly to the end which he wishes to accomplish, without the delays and uncertainties which always follow the reference of such a question to a public committee. The rules and regulations give the superintendent the power to do what Dr. Andrews has just accomplished, and he has succeeded in making it plain that he intends to exercise that power in the right direction, so far as his judgment is involved.

At another point the new superintendent desires a change in the rules of the board. He asks that he may be permitted to attend the meetings and take part in discussions relating to school management, but without the right to vote upon any question. Here again he is on the right track. No board of education is competent to act understandingly in matters that are likely to come up, and that do come up, at every session, without positive and perhaps official information covering the case.

There seems to be a little squirming, however, over this request, evidently out of fear that the superintendent's presence might overawe the private judgment of the several members, and thus enable him to exercise a control which some of them might not desire. We believe in this respect the request of Dr. Andrews is for the interest of the board himself, and in harmony with what is customary in other towns and cities. Certain it is that in Newport the presence of the superintendent is not only tolerated, but desired, at every meeting. There arise many questions connected with details which he alone can answer offhand, and his advice should be of the utmost value. It is not a little surprising that the Chicagoans, who have the reputation of being wideawake, and whose schools stand well before the country, not only should not have permitted the presence of the superintendent, but should not have required it as one of the obligations of the position.

PUBLIC AND PRIVATE ENTERPRISE.

The camps at Montauk Point is said to furnish a striking contrast between the possibilities of business achievement on the part of the government and the Long Island railroad, for the latter has accomplished a remarkable feat in providing for the contingencies of the hour in so short a time. There was very little at Montauk when the announcement was made that the place had been chosen as a camp, but in a week more there were freight loads upon loads, besides many miles of new-laid track in readiness, and a large amount of rolling stock had been hurried—and all this in the midst of the Long Island railroad's busy season.

But the United States government, in the emergency of thousands of sick and dying men on its hands, could not contrive to order even cots enough for them to sleep on, not to mention the first necessity of sufficient nourishing food. And so as a last extremity the people have been compelled to rise up and do the work needed. Had it not been for the charities the record would have equalled the worst ever made in war. All this sounds very strange when the commissary department had plenty of money, all the food and delicacies were at hand, and every want could have been anticipated and guarded against.

THE CRETANS.

The latest news from the island of Crete is encouraging. The indications are that, through fear of offending the Turks, who have recently been guilty of renewed massacres on a large scale, "the powers" will decline to take the responsibility of interference with the sultan's wishes. In that case England will be left free to proceed, and the British government has asserted itself so far as to give notice that the Turkish army will be obliged to vacate the premises.

If this can be brought about there will certainly be a settlement of the Cretan trouble much more in the interests of modern civilization and humanity than is likely to come through joint action. Turkish authority should never have been reestablished in Crete, as it was at the end of the Greek war, and it would not have been but for the fear of his majesty the sultan in other directions. Every one admits that the "unspeakable Turk" ought to be driven out; and if now the mutual jealousies of the European powers can be so far overcome as to leave the matter to decisions of England, a good work will be accomplished. The proper thing is annexation to Greece, and probably the troubles will never be settled permanently until this is accomplished.

AT HONOLULU.

It is now well understood that Honolulu is to be made a strong military and naval station. This is probably as it should be under the new policy adopted by the administration. It has been deemed wise for a long time to concentrate troops in strong bodies at large camps near transportation centres. They are there in readiness to be promptly moved to any point where they shall be needed, and if American armies and American ships are likely to be massed anywhere in the near future it is at Hawaii.

It is now understood that 8,000 men are to be stationed there, and should troubles arise in connection with the Eastern problems these can be readily drawn upon for service. The new cable to be established between Hawaii and our mainland makes it possible to work out this problem to the very best advantage. It is already known that the Oregon is to be returned to the Pacific coast, the Iowa, also, is under orders. Arrangements are in progress for amassing military and naval supplies in large quantities, thus making Honolulu an outpost of military and naval strength for the defense of our Pacific coast, and for maintaining whatever authority we may assume in Asiatic seas.

Very disagreeable reports come to hand concerning the movements of "White Caps" in Texas, who are conspiring to run the negroes out of the cotton fields and drive them into the cities and villages. On the other hand a case has just occurred at Oklahoma where the black men have turned lynchers and administered "rude justice" after the same fashion. It appears that there has been an uprising against the colored folks and one or more have been shot. The negroes, having appealed in vain for the interference of the courts, took the matter in hand and strung up the resident judge, who was found by the wayside, having been suspended some time during the night. As this representative of law and justice was a member of the United States court, curious complications may arise.

It appears that President McKinley seconds the motion of the Russian monarch for disarmament, in whole or in part, in the interest of peace. A deputation of Quakers waited on him a few days since and he told them frankly that he favored the movement, and should have a representative at the international convention, if one is held to consider the proposition. He reminded them also that he stood opposed to the war with Spain, but when Congress forced it on the country he felt that the more earnest its prosecution the more speedy would be the return of peace.

In carrying the Spanish troops from Cuba to Spain, the indications are to the effect that the yellow fever will be introduced to that country, as cases are known to be on board the ships. It is quite possible that the homeward trip may be a voyage of horrors should the disease prove to be of a malignant type, one authority estimating the possibilities of loss at fifty per cent. It is well for us that these soldiers are returned on Spanish vessels and manned by Spaniards themselves, though at our cost.

It looks very much as though President McKinley's scheme for an investigation of the War Department is to be a failure. Most of the men whom he named as commissioners are refusing to serve, and the army officers are seriously objecting to be thus investigated by a civil commission which has no power to enforce its processes by sending for persons and papers. They ask, if there is to be an investigation at all, that it shall be in the regular way and by other processes than those marked out.

Secretary of War Alger is receiving ovations from the people of Michigan, wherever he goes, and appears to be highly elated over the situation. He says he has done nothing for which he has to fear the censure of the people, and is especially pleased with the outbursts of approbation that meet him from day to day.

Our treasury officials at Washington are giving out with great glee that they have more gold in the vaults than was ever there at any one time before. It will occur to some people that enough of it should be drawn out to relieve the suffering soldiers from such distresses as they are suffering from the want of back pay.

The Fall River high school opened its autumnal session with a class of 254 pupils, of whom 74 are in preparation for college. Not many high schools in New England are doing better than that.

Every state which has held an election thus far records a very light vote, as was to be expected. And there is no sense in rejoicing over the decline of the usual majorities in Maine and Vermont on the one side, any more than that in Arkansas on the other.

General Pando insists that the war in Cuba is not yet ended. Why then should he not go there and finish it at his leisure?

FUTURE TRAINING OF THE NAVAL MILITIA.

The Aileen, under command of Lieutenant Stayton of the New York naval militia, is still doing marine hospital service at Montauk, but she will be detached from this service in a day or two and placed out of commission in the Brooklyn navy yard. In view of the experience of the naval militia during the war the Navy Department feels that it would be unwise to return the officers and men to the system of training which they were under before hostilities began.

Captain J. R. Bartlett, chief of the auxiliary force, is preparing a plan for submission to the Secretary which he believes will be satisfactory to the department and to the naval militia. Before finally determining the matter, however, Captain Bartlett has addressed a circular letter to the chiefs of the seven districts of the auxiliary coast defense service and to the naval militia officers who saw service on men-of-war and auxiliary cruisers, requesting them to send to him their views as to the plan which should be adopted for the future training of the naval militia. When the replies are received Captain Bartlett will complete his report and will submit it to the department and Secretary Long is expected to comment upon it in his annual report.

There were 4,500 militiamen who saw service in the late war, and with proper governmental assistance, it is believed by departmental officials, a force of officers and men will always be ready, at little expense, to enter into the naval service in time of war. So far as now seems apparent, Captain Bartlett is not in favor of the old plan of giving the reserve station ships and of sending them to sea for a cruise of a week each year, but desires that they should have active duty afloat in such manner that the men would be well acquainted with modern ordnance and the latest engineering developments on board ship.

REWARDS FOR CONSPICUOUS SERVICE.

Instead of recommending the advancement of officers for conspicuous conduct in battle over the heads of officers equally deserving, the promotion board will probably recommend the enactment of a law which will permit the President to give those who may be worthy, medals of honor and ten per cent increase in pay.

The board will assemble at the Navy Department tomorrow. In anticipation of its meeting the department is gathering reports of commanding officers and others describing engagements and setting forth the names of those who particularly distinguished themselves. It is appreciated by the department that the board has a delicate duty to perform, especially in view of the existing laws, which permit the advancement of an officer only at the expense of those immediately above him. Even officers who have received such advancement are opposed to the system, because of the hardships it works upon others and is liable to work upon themselves.

Members of the board decline to discuss the matter, but none of them is in favor of the present system of promotion, and it is probable that they will report to the department the names of those they consider entitled to recognition, but whose promotion they will object to on account of the loss of numbers which such action would entail upon others equally worthy. The members of the board are Rear Admiral Sicard, Rear Admiral Matthews and Rear Admiral Norton, retired.

A bill has been framed by Judge Advocate General Lemly which will be presented to Congress by Secretary Long in his forthcoming annual report. This will provide for the repeal of existing laws regarding the advancement of officers for gallant conduct, and will authorize the President to award each a medal of honor and increase of pay amounting to ten per cent, which will continue throughout the various grades and during retirement.

CHANGES IN THE LIFE OF THE OCEAN HOUSE.

The Ocean House at Newport was a landmark which survived many social changes at Newport. When fashion abandoned the hotels it was given over to tourists who came to see the place, and persons who stopped there for a few days' enjoyment of the town's attractions. Its guests were never of Newport's life, and later, when permanent summer guests again became a feature of the hotel, they were in no way identified with what is known as the summer life of the town. So far as they shared in that, the hotel might have been situated in another town. They saw what there was of it that was visible on the streets, and that was all. The hotel later came to have its regular summer guests, who passed weeks there and went to Newport quite as they might have gone to other summer resorts. The presence of a foreign notability occasionally added lustre to the register, but it was exclusively the foreigners who gave the place this distinction. With the past few years the hotel had begun to get nearer the real atmosphere of Newport life. Several families who were conspicuous in the social life of Newport went there, and this proved enough to make the place regarded with more toleration than it had received in many years. The names of well-known people began to appear with greater frequency among its lists of guests and something like social regeneration might have come if the place had not been destroyed by fire. The smaller and more expensive hotels do not supply completely the demand for accommodations which exists now, and if Newport gets a new hotel it is likely to enjoy the benefit of the vogue that was just returning to the hotel which it had deserted so positively years before, when the entire life of Newport went to the cottages and the magnificent homes built there in recent years.—[New York Sun.

TURKEY REFUSES.

Will Not Withdraw Her Troops from Crete.

Claims the Present Situation Was Caused by the Powers.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 14.—The Turkish government has sent a circular to the powers, alleging that the British provoked the disorders at Candia, claiming that the present situation is due to the measures adopted by the powers in Crete, and protesting against the bombardment of Candia. Finally, the Porte announces its refusal to withdraw the Turkish troops from Crete, in spite of the decision of the admirals that such a step is absolutely necessary. The circular has made a bad impression in diplomatic circles.

Bashi Bazouks Consent to Disarm.

CANDIA, Crete, Sept. 14.—The Bashi Bazouks have consented to disarm, provided their arms are delivered to the Turkish authorities.

The Mussulman authorities, in view of the admiral's ultimatum, have already arrested twenty ringleaders of the recent massacres here.

SIXTEEN STILL IN.

Pairs Started on Today's Golf Play at Morristown.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Sept. 14.—Of the one hundred and two aspirants who began last Monday to play for national amateur golf championship honors over the Morris county golf links sixteen were still in the race when the contest was resumed this morning. As yesterday, match or pole play was the rule, and some excellent golf was exhibited by the eight pairs who will traverse the long course twice during the day's play.

The local player, J. A. Tyng, has a host of admirers, who put their faith in his ability to hold his own against any of his opponents now eligible.

C. B. MacDonald of Chicago, the former champion, and Walter B. Smith of the Onwentsia club of Chicago are also looked upon as very likely to be among the eight successful ones at the close of the day's play. The most popular fancy for the actual winner points to Findlay S. Douglas of the Fairfield county club, Greenwich, Conn., and the game that he has put up during the last two days fully stamps him as having an excellent chance for the prize.

The weather this morning was delightfully fine, and quite a representative assemblage was on hand when play began, at 10 o'clock. W. J. Travis of Bayside, Long Island, and J. G. Thorp of Cambridge, Mass., were the first two to go off from the tee in front of the club house piazza.

They were followed after a brief interval by A. Morten of Westchester and J. J. Stillman of Newport.

The next were Findlay S. Douglas and A. H. Smith of Huntingdon Valley.

A. M. Coats of Newport and F. H. Bohlen, the Philadelphian, were the next away.

Ex-Champion C. B. MacDonald and John Reid, Jr., of St. Andrews then took up their positions at the starting point. After they had passed the first hole Walter B. Smith of Chicago and L. B. Bayard, Jr., of the Baltusrol club were despatched on their journey.

G. D. Fowle of Philadelphia and Jasper Lynch of Lakewood were the seventh couple to go out.

Foxhall P. Keene and J. A. Tyng were the last pair, and they were followed by a large gallery of spectators.

Of the other players, MacDonald and Reid had the largest following.

Weavers Indifferent as to the Length of the Strike.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Sept. 14.—A meeting of the striking weavers of the Border City mill was held this forenoon in Brightman hall, to answer the roll-call and discuss the situation. All hands were present, and they seemed to be very indifferent as to how long the strike will continue. The weavers of mill No. 2 were paid their third week's strike allowance by Secretary Whitehead. The other strikers will not come into benefits till next week.

NAMES FOR SCHOOL BUILDINGS.

The following extract from the report of Superintendent of Schools Baker, in relation to the choice of a name for the new schoolhouse, is full of suggestion and interest:

"Newport has a long roll of worthies, native and adopted, who have been eminent in science, arts or letters, in the professions, or in civil and military administration, so that it would be an easy matter to name many schoolhouses without exhausting the list of local celebrities. Not to speak of the living, let me call your attention to George Berkeley, who did so much to impart an intellectual stimulus to this community, and who had in mind the founding of a great university on the western continent; to Dr. John Clarke, who did so much to maintain the rights and to preserve the integrity of the colony; to John Coggeshall—first president of the colony under the patent—ancestor of a man now living (Thomas Coggeshall), who for many years, in the school committee, in the City Council, in the executive chair, gave his best thought and efforts for the welfare of the city; to Van Zandt, after whom the street is named on which the building will stand; to Malbone, Allston and Gilbert Stuart, the artists.

"Dr. Waterhouse, William Ellery, Commodore O. H. Perry, Commodore Matthew Perry, George Bancroft, William L. Marcy, once Secretary of State and a former school teacher in Newport; Dr. Gallaudet, Dr. Styles, president of Yale College; Charles T. Brooks and William H. Channing are names worthy to be chiselled on enduring stone, but it seems to me that the name selected should be of one who had rendered conspicuous service to the cause of public education. Such a man was Thatcher Thayer, who served the city many years as a member of the school committee and who was chiefly instrumental in securing the endowment for the Rogers High School and in organizing the higher education in this city. Another name, not less conspicuous, is that of John Howland, a native of Newport and a soldier of the Revolution, who may rightly be called the father of the common school system of the state. You will, doubtless, recall many other celebrities in this connection. Let me suggest, however, that the name chosen, like most of the names of our schoolhouses, should have a direct influence upon the children to bring to their minds some important fact in the history of their city, state or nation."

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Mrs. Smythe of New York is at the Carry cottage, Bath road.

—The usual weekly excursion train from Boston is due tomorrow.

—Mr. Theo. Meyer of New York is guest of Mr. Frederick Sheldon.

—Torpedo boat Cushing arrived in the harbor from New York at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

—Tug Henry T. Sisson and lighter Ox are at work on sunken schooner James Parker at Saunderstown.

—Thus far four arrests have been made for the larceny of junk from the ruins of the Ocean House.

—There is a great quantity of mail matter of all kinds at the postoffice, waiting for the arrival of naval vessels.

—The men of Light Battery F, Second artillery, now here, expect that the battery, or what is left of it, will arrive here Monday.

—Miss Bradfield of New York, who has been guest of Mrs. W. H. Lowndes for several weeks, returned home this afternoon.

—A despatch from New York says cruiser Brooklyn passed out by Quarantine at 9:45 o'clock this morning, bound for this city.

—The fair for the benefit of St. Joseph's Church, which will open in Odd Fellows' hall this evening, will continue until Saturday night of next week.

—Mary C. Allman has sold to Jacob Mohr, for $1,275, the estate fronting, 22½ feet, on the south side of Poplar street, and bounded west, 61 feet, by land of L. M. Root.

—Mrs. Charles W. Carpenter and Miss Carpenter of Ilion, N. Y., R. S. Carpenter of Boston and Ensign Charles W. Tuttle, U. S. N., arrived at The Aquidneck this afternoon.

—The politicians are already getting into trim for the November elections, and fences are being repaired and constituents are receiving attentions which have been missing for nearly a year.

—Word has been received here that schooner Annie V. Bergen, with coal for Pinniger & Manchester, from Elizabethport, N. J., was run into off New London Monday night and was beached on the flats to save her. It is not known whether the schooner and cargo can be saved.

—The sum of $75, with which to buy cots for the soldiers, has been collected by a number of young girls among the cottage residents, including Charlotte Warren, Beatrice Goelet, Gladys Vanderbilt, Ruth Twombly, Edith Miller and Katherine Lawrence. The money has been sent to Mrs. Baldwin, and will be used for the purpose for which it was collected.

—The work of setting up the portable asphalt plant at the Old Colony yard took so much time that it was impossible to begin laying the pavement before tomorrow. It is hoped to start in the morning, when the big gang of laborers who have been waiting for the asphalt will get to work. Then, and not till then, will the residents of lower Thames street be convinced that the end of the long blockade is impending, like peace with Spain.

NEW COUNTY JAIL.

Plans Provide for Enlargement and Improvement of the Present Building.

The plans for the new county jail for Newport, for which the General Assembly at its last session made an appropriation of $20,000, have been drawn by Mr. Dudley Newton, architect, and are now ready for bidders. The plans do not provide for an entire building, but rather an enlarging and improvement of the present one. The proposed structure is in the colonial style of architecture, in keeping with the present, with two stories and a double pitched roof, the latter without dormers or ornamentation. The new buildings will cover about the space of the present one, extending on the west nearly to Charles street. The walls of the old house will be retained, and the west section will be constructed of brick similar to the old. A board porch with round pillars supporting the roof extends from the north front, facing Marlborough street. From this entrance is made to the building through a vestibule and main hall, and from the latter the two distinct portions of the house will be reached.

The interior of the old building will be torn out, and in this will be located the jail proper. On the lower floor will be twelve cells of steel, all of the same size. The floors and ceilings will be made of 3-16 inch steel, with four inches of concrete on top and bottom. On the second floor will be eleven cells, also of steel, one double the size of the others, to be used for a hospital; one to be fitted as a solitary confinement cell, one as a padded cell, and three each for the use of women and boys, where they can be kept apart from the other prisoners. Each cell has a washbowl and water-closet in it, the latter being in a niche in the rear extending out into the back corridor. This corridor is to be opened to the skylight ventilator above. On each floor of the jail proper is a large bathroom.

The addition to be made on the west will be 47.6x36, and will be used by the family of the jailer. On the first floor are the dining-room and parlor, each 15x15; a kitchen, 15x18; a pantry, 7x10.6, and an office, 12x13. The office is on the right of and opening directly from the main hall. In the kitchen closet is an opening into the jail portion of the building, through which the meals of the prisoners can be passed without going through the other parts of the house. On the second floor will be five chambers and a bathroom. The upper story of the jailer's house is not connected with the jail portion, except that there are peep-holes through the walls, commanding a full view of the second floor of the jail, as there are similar holes between the two sections of the first floor. The building will be lighted by gas, but no arrangements have yet been made for heating. The work will be done under the direction of Senator J. W. Horton of this city, and Representatives Oscar A. Newell of Pawtucket and John H. Wetherell of this city, who were appointed commissioners by the General Assembly.

JAMESTOWN.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

Mr. Thompson Spencer and Mr. Alfred Vanderbilt, each with a party, enjoyed the drives of Jamestown yesterday afternoon on their four-horse brakes.

Superintendent Kohler has flung the Stars and Stripes to the breeze over his office.

Mr. Samuel Cottrell of Pawtucket is visiting here.

Mr. F. P. Sheldon and family of Providence, who have occupied the south Eustis cottage, returned to Providence today.

The Misses Atkinson have returned from Providence.

The Misses McCauley will close their cottage today and return to their home in Philadelphia.

Commodore A. Hart McKee will close the Logan cottage today and return to his home in Pittsburg.

The sunken schooner lying in the way of steamer Beavertail has been pumped out and will be removed this afternoon. The steamer will be able to make all her trips tomorrow.

INSURANCE RATES REDUCED.

The committee of the New England Insurance Exchange having Newport's interests in charge, met in connection with the local board of underwriters at The Aquidneck today, and decided upon the reduction to be made in insurance rates throughout the city. It will be found that very material reductions have been permitted, and such as are believed will satisfy reasonable public demands. It is understood that the printed tariff of rates will be completed very soon, but the schedule is to go into effect from this time, as the chairman of the committee consents to furnish the prices in advance to those whose policies expire previous to the publication.

RAN UP THAMES STREET AT A LIVELY PACE.

There was a runaway on Thames street this noon. Joseph Underwood's butcher wagon, from Middletown, was standing on Dennison street when the minstrels passed by on Spring, and the horse started and marched along until the wagon struck a wheelbarrow loaded with wood. Then steam was put on. As the horse turned into Thames street there were no brakes on the wheels, so two of the wheels were broken, the harness broke and the shafts were twisted. Dr. Potter's trap, also from Middletown, was struck and injured, and the horse was freed from the wreck. The animal continued up Thames street, though several persons tried to stop him, and several times it looked as though he was going into stores shopping. No other damage was done than to the two Middletown turnouts.

A NATIVE OF NEWPORT.

Mrs. John Whaley of Narragansett Pier died Wednesday after a lingering illness, in the seventy-eighth year of her age. Mrs. Whaley was born in Newport in 1820, and was the daughter of Captain John Hammond of this city. She was twice married, her first husband being Samuel Smith of South Kingstown. One son from this marriage was killed in the civil war, and one, Samuel Smith, lives at Narragansett Pier. In 1857, she married John Whaley. Besides her husband, Mrs. Whaley leaves three children, Hannah, Ida and Frank Whaley, all of whom reside at Narragansett Pier.

POLO PROSPECTS FOR NEXT SEASON.

The polo season of 1898 is over so far as Newport is concerned, and the ground is closed for the season. The players have been able to have one match game and one practice game here, though there was abundant opportunity to play practice games.

Just what will be done for next season is a question. It is said that the Golf Club is to raise the surface of the polo field on the golf grounds eighteen inches and have it ready for play by next summer. Whether this will be done, or the polo players will have a field of their own, seems to be still undecided. Should the polo players hold the old ground, the proposed road along the east side, if made in time, would cut off the drainage from the hill, and leave the playing field in good condition.

Proposals for Improving Roads.

TOWN CLERK'S OFFICE,
MIDDLETOWN, R. I.,
September 10, A. D. 1898.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at this Office from residents of Newport County only, until Monday, September 19, 1898, at twelve o'clock, noon, for grading, stoning and improving four sections of public highway in said Middletown, being fully described in a certain schedule of specifications for road improvements adopted by the Town Council of said Middletown this day, and to be seen at this Office, also at the office of William H. Lawton, Jr., Civil Engineer, Hodges Block, Newport, R. I. Said sections of highway are to be severally treated and improved as particularly defined in said schedule, and include 500 feet of the West Main Road at the foot of Weaver's hill, 717 feet of the Wyatt Road opposite the Ogden Farm, 300 feet of Green End Avenue opposite the estate of Christopher S. Peckham, and 1,800 feet of Paradise Avenue.

Proposals must be made for improving each section separately and as provided in said schedule and directed to the Town Council of Middletown. Every proposal should name some responsible person for surety, on the bond which will be required of those to whom any contract is awarded. Said Town Council hereby reserves the right to reject any and all proposals which may be received.

RELIEF FOR NEW WESTMINSTER.

Generous Donations Received from Victoria and Ontario.

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 14.—Two carloads of provisions and over $5,000 represent Victoria's donation to the New Westminster relief fund up to this time. Many contributions to the relief fund have already reached New Westminster.

It is estimated that over $10,000 worth of goods have already reached New Westminster for relief purposes. Last night Premier Seddin received the following telegram from Hon. R. Harcourt, treasurer of Ontario:

"The province of Ontario deeply sympathizes with the citizens of New Westminster. As its contribution to the relief fund you may draw on me for $2,500."

UXBRIDGE SOLDIERS' MONUMENT.

Erected by Citizens on the Common and Dedicated Today.

UXBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 14.—The dedication of the soldiers' monument, which was erected on the common by the citizens of Uxbridge, occurred today. Appropriate dedicatory services were held on the common when the monument was unveiled. H. H. Legg Post, Grand Army of the Republic, received the monument for dedication and after the service it was presented to the town.

A line was formed on the common and proceeded about the town in the following order: Chief marshal and staff; Uxbridge Brass Band; Sons of Veterans Division, Camps from Uxbridge, Northbridge, Milford, Douglas, Grafton and Upton; Civic Division, made up of lodges from the Odd Fellows, Ancient Order of Hibernians, Father Mathew T. A. Society, United Workmen, Knights of Pythias, Knights of Golden Eagle, and Foresters; Grand Army of the Republic division, consisting of department officers, posts from Milford, Northbridge, Douglas, Grafton, Upton and Uxbridge, carriages and guests.

The line of march was through the principal streets and back to the common. The president of the day, Charles A. Taft, presented the monument to H. H. Legg Post for dedication. Colonel George M. Rice, commander of the post, accepted the monument and the Grand Army dedicatory service was used. Miss Sadie Sayles, daughter of Herbert R. Sayles, unveiled the monument. J. H. L. Keegan, chaplain, offered the prayer of dedication.

The line again formed and marched to the town hall, where the remainder of the exercises were held. These included prayer by Rev. C. H. Roys, presentation of the monument to the town by president Charles A. Taft, and acceptance by Frank J. Hamilton, chairman of the board of selectmen. Hon. A. A. Putnam of Uxbridge delivered the oration of the day. He spoke of the heroes of the civil war and of the great advance in all lines in the United States since that conflict. Dinner for the guests was served in a tent in the Centre school yard. A band concert was given at 3 o'clock on the common.

The monument stands nearly in the centre of the common and is nineteen feet in height. The three base blocks are of solid granite, the upper bearing military emblems, the anchor, crossed muskets, crossed swords, cannon swab and broken wheel, representing the navy, army, cavalry and artillery. Surmounting this is another block bearing the words: "In memory of the soldiers of Uxbridge who served in the war for the Union, 1861-1865." Above stands a polished shaft, upon which are inscribed the names of 207 soldiers and sailors who during the Rebellion were citizens of Uxbridge or enlisted from that town.

SERVED SEVEN TERMS.

Death of F. W. Lincoln, a Former Mayor of Boston.

BOSTON, Sept. 14.—The death of Hon. F. W. Lincoln, who served seven terms as mayor of this city, was announced this morning. He died last night at his home in Dorchester, after an illness of only two days.

Hon. F. W. Lincoln was born in Boston February 27, 1817. He was a grandson of Amos Lincoln, a member of the "Tea Party" and captain of an artillery company during the Revolutionary war, who married a daughter of the distinguished patriot, Paul Revere. He received an education in the public and private schools of his time. He served in the state legislature several terms, and was a member of the constitutional convention in 1853. Mr. Lincoln was one of the original directors of the Continental bank, a trustee of the Institute of Technology, vice president of the Boston Safe Deposit Company, president of the Franklin Savings Bank, president of the Massachusetts Charitable Fire Society and a member of other similar organizations.

After having served for three years as mayor of Boston, 1858-1860, Mr. Lincoln was once more called from private life to accept the mayoralty, which he held for four years, 1863-1868, notable chapters in the history of Boston. During this period he displayed the qualities of a sturdy executive and by the prompt use of a military force crushed out an incipient rebellion in the form of draft riots in Boston. He delivered the presentation address at the unveiling of the first outdoor statue set up in Boston—that of Benjamin Franklin.

Mr. Lincoln married Emeline, daughter of Hon. Jacob Hall. She died the following year, leaving a daughter, Harriet A., who became the wife of G. A. Coolidge. In 1851 Mr. Lincoln married Emily C., daughter of Noah Lincoln. The children are Frederick W., Jr., of the banking firm of Kidder, Peabody & Co.; Mary K. and Jr. R. Lincoln.

GOOD-BYE TO HAY.

Distinguished Party Bids Farewell to the Home-Coming Ambassador.

LONDON, Sept. 14.—Colonel John Hay, the retiring United States ambassador, and Mrs. Hay left London today for Liverpool, from which port they will sail for New York on board White Star line steamer Teutonic. Most of the staff of the United States embassy accompanied them to Liverpool. A large number of friends assembled at the railroad station to bid the colonel and his wife good-bye. Among the gathering were the queen's master of ceremonies, Colonel the Hon. Sir William James Colville; Lady Harcourt, Mr. C. F. Adams of Boston, Professor Charles Waldstein, director of the American Archaeological school at Athens, ex-Senator and Mrs. Cameron and the Mexican minister. Colonel and Mrs. Hay traveled to Liverpool in a special drawing room car.

MINERS WILL MOVE.

Neither Starvation Nor Hardship Likely on Kotzebue Sound.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 14.—The Call says there will be neither starvation nor hardship at Kotzebue sound this year. Many disappointed gold hunters probably will return to San Francisco, but private advices say that the majority of those who went from San Francisco will remain on the Kobuck river until next spring, at least. Barks Alaska and Northern Light and barkentines J. A. Falenberg and Catherine Sudden are still in Kotzebue sound, and will bring back all the miners who do not like the prospect.

Klondike's Cold Output Estimated at $8,000,000.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 14.—F. C. Wade, crown attorney of the Klondike, has arrived here from Dawson City. Mr. Wade estimates the gold output this season at $8,000,000.

Named for President of the University of California.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 14.—The resignation of President Kellogg of the University of California has aroused speculation as to his successor. The names most prominently mentioned are those of Jacob Gould Schurman, president of Cornell University; Daniel Colt Gilman, president of Johns Hopkins, and Edmund J. James, of the University of Chicago.

Everett Schwartz, the newly elected director of the Wilmarding School of Mechanical Arts, an adjunct of the university, is at present principal of the manual training school at Waltham, Mass.

Death of a $5,000 Prize Collie.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 14.—Lady Gay, a noted collie, owned by Samuel Stannard, died last night at Mr. Stannard's kennel in this city. The collie was valued at $5,000 and has taken first prizes all over the country at bench shows.

POLICE NOTES.

A Frenchman, an alleged cripple, was fined $10 and costs today for peddling without a license. This is not his first offence in Newport.

At the police court today one man pleaded not guilty to being an "idle person without visible means of support," one was fined for drunkenness and one for revelling.

A GREAT SURPRISE IN STORE

For those who will go today and get a package of GRAIN-O. It takes the place of coffee at about 1 the cost. It is a food drink, full of health, and can be given to the children as well as the adult with great benefit. It is made of pure grains and looks and tastes like the finest grades of Mocha and Java coffee. It satisfies everyone. A cup of Grain-O is better for the system than a dime, because its benefit is permanent. What coffee breaks down Grain-O builds up. Ask your Grocer for Grain-O. 15c. and 25c.

AGAINST THE REVISED CONSTITUTION.

Democratic State Central Committee Records Its Opposition.

The Democratic state central committee met in Providence yesterday, about a score of members being present. The date of the Congressional conventions was fixed, and resolutions committing the party in the state, so far as it can be committed by the action of the committee, to opposition to the revised state constitution, were adopted.

The district conventions for the nomination of candidates for Congress will be held in Providence Thursday, October 6, that of the First district at 12 o'clock and that of the Second an hour later.

The resolutions regarding the constitution, which were introduced by Dr. L. F. C. Garvin, and unanimously adopted, are as follows:

Whereas, A commission appointed by the governor, after doing the work which by American custom and right devolves upon a convention of the people, has drawn up a "Revised Constitution," to be submitted to popular vote on the eighth day of November, and

Whereas, Said "Revised Constitution" lessens the power of the people by providing for state elections but once in two years, and to be held on the day of the Presidential and Congressional elections; by dividing the state for the purpose of electing representatives into 100 unequal districts, to be gerrymandered to suit the dominant political machine by restricting the suffrage so recently extended through constitutional amendment; by postponing a constitutional convention for twelve years; and the making it an exact copy of the grand committee of 138 members; by perpetuating the disfranchisement of registry voters in the election of city councils, and by leaving the "rotten borough senate" so dangerous and unjust, wholly unchanged; therefore, be it.

Resolved, That we urge upon Democrats and upon all other voters who believe in government by the people, the duty of casting their ballots against the proposed amendment, "the so-called Revised Constitution."

Messrs. Garvin, Carroll, West, Fitzgerald and McGlynn were appointed a committee to arrange for a series of outdoor meetings for the purpose of agitating against the new constitution.

YESTERDAY'S GOLF GAMES.

The tournament for the golf championship of the United States was continued on the grounds of the Morris County Club at Morristown, N. J., yesterday. It was a model day for golf. Generally speaking, the scores improved, owing to the good condition of the course and to the fine given the contestants to finish. Following are the results:

W. J. Travis beat J. Insley Blair, 4 up, 3 to play.

J. G. Thorpe beat M. R. Wright, 3 up, 2 to play.

J. A. Tyng beat F. W. Mensers, 6 up, 5 to play.

Foxhall Keene beat R. E. Griscom, 5 up, 3 to play.

Alex Morton beat W. Cutting, Jr., 2 up, 1 to play.

J. A. Stillman beat E. C. Rushmore, 6 up, 4 to play.

Findlay Douglass beat J. F. Curtis, 6 up, 5 to play.

A. H. Smith beat R. A. Crowell, 2 up, 1 to play.

F. H. Rahlen beat W. H. Sands, 2 up.

A. M. Coates beat H. K. Toler, 5 up, 4 to play.

John Reid, Jr., beat A. D. Cochrane, 2 up, 1 to play.

G. B. McDonald beat G. G. Hubbard, 4 up, 2 to play.

W. B. Smith beat J. H. Choate, Jr., 8 up, 7 to play.

L. P. Bayard won by default.

H. P. Toler beat G. D. Fowler, 1 up (37 holes).

Jasper Lynch beat C. D. Litenweaver, 3 up, 1 to play.

A. M. Coates, J. A. Stillman and Foxhall P. Keene are still in the competition as representatives of the Newport club.

INTENSE SUFFERING

From Dyspepsia and Stomach Trouble

INSTANTLY RELIEVED AND PERMANENTLY CURED BY STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

A New Discovery, But Not a Patent Medicine.

Dr. Bedwell relates an interesting account of what he considers a remarkable cure of acute stomach trouble and chronic dyspepsia by the use of the new discovery, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

He says: The patient was a man who had suffered to my knowledge for years with dyspepsia. Everything he ate seemed to sour and create acid and gases in the stomach; he had pains like rheumatism in the back, shoulder blades and limbs, fullness and distress after eating, poor appetite and loss of flesh; the heart became affected, causing palpitation and sleeplessness at night.

I gave him powerful nerve tonics and blood remedies, but to no purpose. As an experiment I finally bought a fifty cent package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at a drug store and gave them to him. Almost immediate relief was given and after he had used four boxes he was to all appearances fully cured.

There was no more acidity or sour watery risings, no bloating after meals, the appetite was vigorous and he had gained between 10 and 12 pounds in weight of solid, healthy flesh.

Although Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are advertised and sold in drug stores yet I consider them a most valuable addition to any physician's line of remedies, as they are perfectly harmless and can be given to children or invalids or in any condition of the stomach with perfect safety, being harmless and containing nothing but vegetable and fruit essences, pure pepsin and Golden Seal.

Without any question they are the safest, most effective cure for indigestion, biliousness, constipation and all derangements of the stomach however slight or severe.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are made by the Stuart Co. of Marshall, Mich., and sold by druggists everywhere at fifty cents per package.

A Constant Strain Will weaken anything. You may stretch elastic a long time, but it will break in the end. You may strain and work your eyes a long time, but in the end you will break the muscles and crush the delicate nerves until they are useless pulp. A little rest, a little loosening of the tension, and you save both the elastic and the eyes. We examine eyes—carefully—accurately. No charge.

Old Gunner's Mate Through Years of Experience.

Seaman Gunner as the Result of Modern Training.

There is an old gunner's mate on battleship Oregon who has been in the service over thirty years. He polished and cared for the 9-inch smooth-bore guns of the old navy, transferred his affections to the wicked 60-pounders when they were in vogue, and has finally adopted as his pet and pride one of the monster 13-inch beauties of the Oregon. He cannot read a word and signs the paymaster's rolls with a cross, yet he knows the intricate mechanism of a breech-loader as a scholar does the alphabet, and he can hit a canvas ball's eye 2,000 yards away with a 1,100 pound projectile as easily as an expert pool player can make a pocket.

When the ill-fated ships of Admiral Cervera's fleet poked their noses past Morro Castle in their desperate and theatrical attempt to escape from Santiago harbor, this grizzled old gunner's mate was engaged in his usual task, that of lovingly shining up the glossy coat of his 13-inch pride. When the cry went up that the enemy was escaping and the drums and bugles and gongs hastily sounded general quarters, he gave a few finishing touches to the muzzle, then quietly took his station in the turret. Presently turning to a young seaman gunner next to him he said: "Charlie, I'll bet you a month's pay that I make a better shot at the Dago beggars than you. What d'ye say?"

"Done," was the prompt reply. Ten minutes later the old gunner's mate squinted his eye along the sight, signaled the man at the training lever to ease off a little, took the range from the officer in charge of the division, then gave the firing lanyard a quick jerk. When the smoke lifted the eager watchers saw a great yawning hole in the port bow of the Almirante Oquendo.

A cheer came from the men in the turret, and the old veteran glanced triumphantly toward the seaman gunner. The latter's turn soon came. The Oquendo, battered and helpless, drifted ashore in flames. The Oregon, accompanied by the Brooklyn, sped on after the fleet-footed Colon. The rapid-fire batteries of both American ships rattled and shrieked after the fugitives. The 8-inch guns rumbled an unceasing chorus as they belched forth their steel shells, and occasionally a deeper roar from the 13-inch monsters would give a weightier volume to the din.

It was after one of the latter shots that the forward turret of the Oregon echoed with a rousing cheer. Charlie, the young seaman gunner, had just dropped the firing lanyard from his hand, and it was seen that the Colon's conning tower was in ruins. "He told me before he pulled the lanyard that he would fetch it," exclaimed one of the gun's crew admiringly, "and he did."

These shots, absolutely marvelous under the circumstances, were fired by men representing the two extremes of the service. The old gunner's mate gained his skill through years of experience; the seaman gunner, scarcely of age, was the product of a modern system of training. But both were American gunners, and that term means something these days.

Eighty-six years ago Great Britain, then as now one of the great powers of the earth, discovered that Americans could win naval battles. But the English historians gravely decided that it was, to use Hume's own words, "because of a secret art in gunnery!" How our gallant forefathers who manned the Constitution and the United States would have laughed at that. They knew, as we know today, that our skill in gunnery comes from a system which has as its key-note one pregnant word—Practice! Practice!

When torpedo boat Morris dropped in at the Brooklyn navy yard on her way to Cuba several weeks ago, among the different members of the crew who went ashore for a short run was a young man, a smooth-faced and blue-eyed, and with a placid, calm expression, such as might be worn by a youth studying theology. He was clad in the picturesque uniform of the naval sailors and there was nothing in his attire or bearing to indicate that he had, among his effects on board, a medal won for expert marksmanship with great guns. He was a seaman gunner, had graduated from the gunnery school at Washington and could place a 13-inch shell in the vitals of an enemy's warship with the accuracy of a Rough Rider using a revolver.

That young man had entered the service as an apprentice when he was scarcely sixteen. He early attracted the notice of his superior officers, who are always on the lookout for promising material, and was sent, after learning the duties of a sailor, to the government gunnery school. There he spent a number of months under theoretical and practical tuition in the science of gunmanship. When he graduated at the end of the course he was detailed to the Newport torpedo school, and there absorbed more scientific training. A few weeks spent in a private arms manufactory, and he has returned to the service—and to his blue jacket's uniform—as a seaman gunner. Although almost fitted for a commission, he is permitted to occupy a position paying him the meagre salary of $35 a month and rations.

There are many young men such as he in our naval service. They are to be found on every ship, and there are hundreds and hundreds of naval apprentices in training for the same station. It was neither the seamen gunners or men rendered expert by constant practice after our thorough system who manned the batteries of the Olympia, Baltimore and Boston in the battle of Manila bay, and of the Brooklyn, Oregon, Iowa, Texas and the rest of Sampson's fleet in the destruction of Cervera's fugitive squadron off Santiago. The "man behind the gun" in the American navy is no magician. He can shoot with marvelous accuracy, and he can make a sieve with a rapid-fire gun of any warship afloat, but he is enabled to do it simply because he has been instructed after that fashion.

When the officers of Cervera's squadron recovered from their shock after the annihilation of their ships, one of them—the executive officer of the Maria Teresa—exclaimed to Lieutenant Commander Wainwright of the gallant little Gloucester: "Madre de Dios! You Americans shoot three shots to our one. And you hit every time. How do you do it? What is the secret?"

"It is no secret," was the reply. "We keep our men constantly at practice. They are out the guns day after day, week in and week out. And we train them under service conditions with the regulation charges and projectiles every three months."

The Spaniard was astounded. "You fire real shots?" he exclaimed. "It costs very much!"

In that last sentence will be found one of the most potent reasons for the defeat of the Spanish naval vessels during the present war. And if the details of history be carefully searched, the loss of the armada and the whole series of naval disasters experienced by the Spanish flag during the past centuries can be laid to the fact that they have been parsimonious in expenditures and dilatory in training.

A visitor to one of our warships will find the various guns as spotlessly clean as a good housewife's kitchen. The gunner's gang on board each vessel is always at work scouring, polishing and brightening. The guns are taken apart at stated intervals, and the intricate mechanism of the breech given special attention. It is worth a gunner's warrant to have a spot of rust discovered on the bright work of a piece of ordnance under his charge.

This strict care tends to foster a peculiar affection of the men for their guns, and they grow to speak of them as animate beings. There is hardly a gun in the navy but has a pet name, and in time of battle like that of Santiago there is actually a rivalry between the different crews as to the successes of their special pets. If the casual visitor to one of the big warships carelessly places his hand upon one of the shining "big beauties" or leans against its polished sides, he will find the salty tar who has that special piece in charge glaring at him in silent rage if the deck officer is about. If that official's eye is turned the other way the gunner will resent the unconscious sacrilege with a picturesque and piratical flow of language that makes the offender move to a safe distance. But if one manifests a friendly interest in learning about the good record of the gun he will find that there is no surer or quicker road to Jackie's heart and that he can be eloquent by the hour in praise of the fine points of his favorites.

All this is wisely ordered. The American system of gunnery in all its details stands vindicated and upheld before the world, and in future years, when the history of this war is treated dispassionately, a prominent niche will be reserved for that peculiar product of Yankee ingenuity and wisdom—the man behind the gun!—[Washington Star.

HINTS FOR FRESHENING THE LATE SEASON'S GOWNS.

It is always possible to buy new laces and ribbons, not to speak of chiffon; but if they are taken off the gowns and given a bath in naphtha, the lace washed in water with a little borax, they will look fresh again—fresh enough, in most instances, to be put back where they were. A dark blue gown that had a white front of chiffon was done over the other day by putting in a front of white taffeta silk that had been treated to a bath in naphtha. Over the silk was put some chiffon that had been cleaned in the same way, and it looked quite like new; but it is better not to put cleaned chiffon or mousseline de soie on cleaned silk. Lace will look very much better, and best of all will look black lace over the white.

The big bows that are worn at the throat, made of plaited black mousseline de soie, are of great advantage in freshening up a gown. They should be made into a bow before being put on, and may be attached to a band of ribbon that will form the collar. If the black is not becoming against the face it may easily be softened by turning down a piece of white lace, or one of the very fine embroidered linen collars edged with lace that are so much worn at present. A belt and sash-ends of satin ribbon of medium width often hide a lot of wear and tear on the back of a gown and quite remodel the skirt.—[Harper's Bazar.

PRINTING A SILVER COIN ON LINEN.

The print of a silver coin or medal may be made on silk or linen by dipping the fabric in a solution of nitrate of silver, and stretching it over the face of the coin until the image is imprinted. The linen or silk is sensitized by dipping it into a solution of nitrate of silver, which is made by dissolving sixty or eighty grains of nitrate of silver in one ounce of water. Wet the portion of the cloth which is to receive the impression in the solution, and when nearly dry draw it over the face of the coin and tie it at the back. Expose to a weak light, and in a few minutes the raised design on the coin will appear on the linen. As soon as it is dark enough remove and wash in clear water. When nearly dry iron it smooth with a warm iron, placing a piece of tissue paper over the print. In printing from the coin or medal it is advisable to paste a piece of paper on the reverse side, so that the silver will not come in contact with the sensitized fabric.—[Harper's Round Table.

A MAGIC ATMOSPHERE.

The mysterious region to which Tesla introduced us in 1891, an electrostatic field of weird and startling effects, is being diligently explored. The lack of necessity for special apparatus brings the experiments within reach of many physicists, Tesla's simple method of producing alternating currents of great frequency being to connect the secondary terminals of a high tension coil with the internal armatures of a Leyden jar, which discharges itself disruptively, the disruptive discharge yielding the desired current.

Details have been greatly varied and improved. In a recent striking exhibition in Paris M. Radignet connected a rheostat, vibrator, induction coil, D'Arsonival oscillator and Oudin resonator, the rheostat being placed directly upon a 110-volt circuit. The coil, giving a 22-inch spark, had condensers of variable capacity, insulated in paraffine. The induced wires were connected with the armatures of a Leyden jar, this being D'Arsonval's arrangement for producing alternating currents of great frequency, and the external armatures of the jar were connected with the Oudin resonator. The latter was formed of a solenoid of 195 feet of 1-10 inch uninsulated copper wire wound on a cylinder of paraffined wood. The contacts were fixed at the opposite sides of the upright cylinder, one a little higher than the other, and a tangent screw changed the number of spirals in each of the two parts of the solenoid, the lower part of which produced the oscillations of great frequency, while at the upper part were the currents of great frequency and very high tension.

This apparatus was a great success. The resonator created all round it, within a radius of six and a half feet, a very intense alternating electrostatic field, in which Geissler or Crookes tubes became luminous when simply held in the hand, a rotating iron wire became a cord covered with tufts of flame, the ribs of an umbrella glowed brightly, and tufts of violet light six or eight inches long stood out upon the hands. A theatre dancer carrying mysteriously lighted objects will be among the first displays of these wonders to the general public.

FINANCIAL.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14, Wall Street—The stock market opened weak, with Burlington at 112¾, Louisville at 56, Leather preferred at 69, Manhattan at 95, Missouri Pacific at 32, Northern Pacific at 37, Northern Pacific preferred at 70¾, People's Gas at 103⅝, Rock Island at 101⅛, Sugar at 129 ex. div., St. Paul at 105¾, Southern preferred at 33⅜, Tobacco at 144, Union Pacific preferred at 63½, Western Union at 92, and Union Pacific at 29½.

Liberal offerings of American Steel and Minnesota Iron caused declines of 2¼ and 4 per cent respectively. The opening prices elsewhere proved to be the lowest, and Tobacco and Sugar rallied very sharply. The list generally rose to a point materially above last night's level. Near 11 o'clock the market ran off again to about the lowest for the heading specialties, Sugar dropping below 128.

Noon—Money on call, firm, at 4 per cent; prime mercantile paper, 4 @ 5 per cent; sterling exchange, steady, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.84¼ @ ½ for demand, and at $4.82¼ @ ½ for sixty days; posted rates, $4.83¾ @ $4.85½; commercial bills, $4.81 @ ½; silver certificates, 60¼ @ 61; bar silver, 60½; Mexican dollars, 47; government bonds, steady. The railway stocks displayed marked resistance in the efforts of the bears, and their failure to work declines in these properties induced covering of outstanding shorts. The principal interest in the market was in the high-priced industrials, and these fluctuated very widely. Sales to noon, 224,681 shares. Prices of bonds shaded off in the absence of demand.

PLENTY OF BUSINESS.

Park Commission Succeeds in Holding a Regular Meeting.

The park commission held a monthly meeting yesterday, the first since July 26. There were present President Weaver and Messrs. Sherman and Gibbs.

The finance report showed a balance from the illumination of the Mall for teie night, which Mr. Sherman suggested should be removed from the commission's accounts. It was simply a case of bookkeeping, since the commission never had the money.

A communication from the mayor, enclosing an offer from E. R. Wharton to place on the west side of Touro Park a drinking fountain for horses, similar to that at Bailey's beach, was read. A general discussion followed. It was the unanimous opinion of the commissioners that a fountain such as is at Bailey's beach is not suitable for Touro Park, where the city has been and is spending considerable. Mr. Wharton's offer was appreciated, and the secretary was instructed to inform him of its feeling in the matter, and ask for plans of such a fountain as he proposes to erect.

The resolution of the City Council, appropriating $225 for a flag-pole and flags for Morton Park, was read. Mr. Weaver stated that the pole and flags and all necessary additions, together with the work of setting, had cost $143.

A communication from M. Butler & Son, calling attention to the need of acting soon on the matter of planting bulbs in the Mall, should the commission so desire, was referred to the chairman with power.

A communication was received from Eugene Schreier of the Jewish congregation, asking that no work in the way of repairs be done on the cemetery on the Jewish Sabbath or on holy days, a list of which was given. The request was deemed a reasonable one and will be granted.

The resolution of the City Council, turning over certain portions of the common burial ground to the care of the commission, was read and a general discussion as to what the commission could do followed. The matter of preparing plans and submitting estimates was referred to the chairman and Mr. Sherman.

The president was authorized to have such trees trimmed as he should consider needed trimming; also to have dying or other trees removed and new ones planted when necessary.

There was a long informal discussion of the probability of the old polo lot being cut up and sold for building sites. The lot is in the market, and the commission had a copy of the plat showing how it is proposed to run two streets, 40 feet wide, from Morton to Bateman avenues, parallel with the west line of Morton Park. This would bring the rear end of one line of house lots against the west line of the park and of Dead Head hill. To obviate this and preserve the integrity of the park, it was proposed to open a street along the west side of the park from Morton to Bateman avenues. This it is thought would add materially to the value of the land to be sold, and it was decided to employ an engineer to prepare plans for such a road, and the commission will see what the owners of the land will do.

BROKE BOTH BONES IN HIS LEG.

Last evening about 6:20 o'clock there was a bicycle accident that resulted in a broken leg. George Bancroft, schoolmaster at the Training Station, mounted his bicycle near Mary street and started up Thames. He had scarcely started before he encountered a Transfer wagon coming down street. He tried to turn out, his wheel slipped and he fell. The driver of the Transfer wagon pulled his horse so quickly that he was thrown out, but one wheel passed over Bancroft's leg, breaking both bones at the ankle. He was taken into the Hub Pharmacy and the ambulance called, and the injured man was taken to the naval hospital. He bore his sufferings without a murmur. The whole thing was a pure accident. Had Bancroft been riding for a short distance he would probably have been able to turn out without slipping.

SUPPLIES WERE WELCOME.

Mrs. Walter has received the following letter of acknowledgement:

Mrs. Howard Walter, Chairman U. S. Sanitary and Relief Association, Newport Branch:

Dear Madam: Pardon me for not sooner having acknowledged the receipt of the stores you and other ladies delivered to me in the detention camp at Montauk Point on the afternoon of August 31. I have been absent from my command on sick leave, and unable to write until today. My squadron of the Second cavalry had arrived from Cuba two days before your visit. There was hardly a man of it but had been sick, or was recovering slowly from the effects of sickness. When three large army wagons drove into our camp, and you and General Randall explained that you had brought our men (about 220) all those delicacies—even luxuries—I can assure you your endeavors to alleviate sickness and to restore to health the sick of my command were duly appreciated. We all, officers and enlisted men, applaud the noble deeds of your society. By dividing the food among the four troops—A., C., D. and F. Second cavalry—and trusting to our doctor the distribution of the wines, cordials, etc., much good was done, not only for one day, but for many. By such acts the soldiers of the regular army know they are not forgotten, and that the generous citizens of the United States are constantly mindful of their welfare. Thanking your society for their most generous and appropriate gift, that welcomed us back to the United States, and the spirit that prompted it, I am

Yours very truly,
W. A. RAFFERTY,
Lt. Colonel Second Cavalry,
Commanding squadron.

Fort Hamilton, New York, Sept. 12, 1898.

ALL APPEALED.

Several of the Block Island Liquor Defendants Sentenced.

The session of the district court yesterday lasted from 10 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., with a recess from 1 to 2 for luncheon. The principal business on the criminal docket came from Block Island, where the usual winter revival feeling struck in very early this year, before even all the summer visitors had gone away. It took the form of a partial enforcement of the liquor laws. The town, after a good deal of fighting last spring, granted five liquor licenses. Of course this did not cover all the places that had been selling, and some at least of those continued to sell, and some of those who continued to sell figured on the docket yesterday.

The prosecution brought from Boston two detectives—Charles R. Arlen and George H. Townsend—to get the evidence required, and they proceeded to the island August 22, and jumped on the first place they landed, the hotel kept by Mary A. Ball being the victim. There were two charges against Ball, for selling a half-pint of whiskey, and for keeping for sale. The evidence showed that while the witnesses and other guests had been supplied with drinks there was but one payment seen, for the said half-pint, 25 cents. Defendant was fined $20 and costs and sentenced to ten days in the county jail for selling said half-pint, and discharged on the count of keeping for sale.

Elwood A. Brown, for keeping for sale, received $20 and costs and ten days.

Irving Hall, for selling, received a similar sentence.

Frank C. Caudall, for keeping for sale, had his case partially heard, and then it was continued to September 27.

The cases against William Austin and James H. Pender, for selling; and Cassius C. Ball, for keeping for sale, were dismissed after hearing, the government not proving its case.

Incident to the cases there were a number of "gos" between Mr. Champlin, who represented Town Sergeant H. A. Mott and the prosecution, and W. P. Sheffield, Jr., who represented the defendants and others who may be defendants. There was a large display of bottled liquors, all appropriately marked, part of the proceeds of the purchases of the two detectives. There was a stenographer to take notes of the testimony, and there were few spectators from Newport but the few present had some fun.

Of course all the cases heard and decided were appealed, and bail was promptly furnished in each case.

On the local docket, the case against John H. Hannon was withdrawn.

VEDA PROTESTED BY VAQUERO III.

The Veda won the race yesterday between the 30-footers, but she was protested by the Vaquero III for forcing a passage between the latter and the outer mark, causing an overlap after the Vaquero III had altered her helm. The Veda contends that an overlap existed before that. The question will be decided by the regatta committee. The wind was southerly and very light, the start being made at 3:05. The course was twice to Bishop Rock and back. The summary follows:

Veda, C. Vanderbilt,	5:23:07	2:18:07
Wa Wa, R. Brooks,	5:25:31	2:20:31
Vaquero III, H. B. Duryea,	5:26:13	2:21:13
Dorothy II, H. P. Whitney,	5:28:03	2:23:03
Carolina, P. Jones,	5:29:14	2:24:14
Aeshi, L. Warren,	Did not finish.

THE PHILHARMONIC'S INTERMISSIONS.

"Minor Mention" in Music for September contains the following: "The Philharmonic Society of Newport, R. I., has inaugurated a valuable innovation in the form of twenty-minute intermissions, during which time the members by previous arrangement perform solos. The list of the compositions given last year is a very creditable one indeed, ranging from preludes and fugues by Bach to all sorts of selections by Beethoven, Schumann and latter composers, of piano and chamber music, a variety of arias and songs and vocal quartets, the range being wide and interesting. The value of this feature lies in its tending to keep up the interest of the members."

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Mrs. Charles G. Boettger of Philadelphia is visiting here.

—Steam yacht Narada has gone to New York for a few days.

—Privates Brooks and Maloney of Light Battery F, Second United States artillery, are in town on furloughs.

—Lieutenant Biswald, U. S. N., has resigned as commandant of the Providence division of the Naval Reserves.

—Arrivals at the Perry House include R. J. Jose, San Jose, Cal.; Ezra Kendall, C. W. Greyer, W. A. Geale, R. Lewis and wife, J. A. Wilson and wife, New York; C. E. Slocum, Providence; H. Goodwin, Boston; E. A. Brown, R. B. Mitchell, Block Island.

—William H. West's minstrel jubilee will be the attraction at the Opera House this evening. There are a number of minstrel favorites in the company, and a special feature will be the musical part which Mr. West has made very prominent in the program, with several well known balladists of excellent reputation.

—The Married Men's base ball club is feeling more and more certain that the base ball instincts of the Red Men have been snuffed by the disbanding of the Newport team, and that neither former manager Gifford nor would-be manager DeBlois will gather together nine players to give them battle. Unless the High Flyers get a team together, it seems doubtful if there is to be any amateur game this season.

NO MORE MUSTERING OUT.

Promotions in the First Rhode Island—Much Sickness Reported.

Tremendous pressure is still being brought to bear on the War Department to have more troops mustered out of the service. Efforts in this direction, however, are of no avail. It was announced yesterday with increased emphasis that there will be no more troops mustered out. The situation does not admit of any further reduction in the army, and efforts are being made to put those volunteers who are retained in the service as near as possible on the footing of the regulars in the matter of drill and discipline.

A little over 96,000 have already been mustered out, and it is announced positively that there will be no more mustered out, no matter what influence is brought to bear. The retention of the volunteers now in the service and the efforts to improve the morale of the army have in view the Philippine situation more than that of Cuba and Porto Rico, although there is a great deal of vagueness as to the danger apprehended there.

Governor Dyer received yesterday the following dispatch from Lieutenant Colonel Frank A. Cook, commanding officer of the First Rhode Island regiment, in regard to the vacancies caused by resignations and illness. The officers named will be promoted:

Camp Meade, Penn., Sept. 13, 1898.

Gov. Elisha Dyer, Providence, R. I.:

Examining board appointed by Colonel Abbot has passed the following with his approval: I recommend their promotion: To be captains—First Lieutenant Stephen Waterman, vice Ledward; First Lieutenant Harold S. Pearce, vice Whipple. To be first lieutenants—Second Lieutenant Thomas F. Rodgers, vice Price; Second Lieutenant Amasa M. Eaton, Jr., vice Waterman. To be second lieutenants—Sergeant Major George H. Slocum, vice Rodgers; Quartermaster Sergeant Horace S. Peck, vice Eaton; Hospital Steward Harry F. Sanderson, vice Richmond.

Governor Dyer has received a letter from Assistant Surgeon Rowland R. Robinson, written Saturday last, regarding Colonel's Abbot's illness. He says:

"Colonel Abbot's condition has remained about the same since I telegraphed you last. Today his temperature has diminished quite a little. He has had a severe type of malarial fever, his temperature at times reaching 105. At present he is extremely weak, but very comfortable. His heart has remained strong during the attack. I hear from Rhode Island that he is reported to have typhoid fever. This is not true, as he has absolutely no symptoms of the disease. At present I do not consider him dangerously ill and if no complication arises he may be able to join his regiment within a week or sooner."

The following abstracts are from a private letter received from a member of Company F by relatives in this city: "Company F has 25 men in the division hospital or in hospitals in Philadelphia. Besides that, there are 10 or more sick in the company streets; not sick enough to go to the hospital, but too sick to do duty. There are 51 men reported now in the company for duty. Some of these are half sick. The other companies are not much better off. This morning there were 13 men that were in the first drill. Of course there were some on guard, some on detail and some on pass; but when the company is all together I don't think there are over 50 men that would be able to do any work. That is a pretty poor showing for a company of 101 men. There was another man went to the hospital from Company F this morning. I do not think that more than half of this regiment is really fit for duty. Giving the best side of the case that can be given, at least 500 men out of the 1,300 composing the regiment are totally unfit for any duty. And the First Rhode Island is only one of the many regiments here."
